The analysis of groups of experiments

F. Yates^{a1} and W. G. Cochran^{a1}

^{a1} Statistical Department, Rothamsted Experimental Station, Harpenden

When a set of experiments involving the same or similar treatments is carried out at a number of places, or in a number of years, the results usually require comprehensive examination and summary. In general, each set of results must be considered on its merits, and it is not possible to lay down rules of procedure that will be applicable in all cases, but there are certain preliminary steps in the analysis which can be dealt with in general terms. These are discussed in the present paper and illustrated by actual examples. It is pointed out that the ordinary analysis of variance procedure suitable for dealing with the results of a single experiment may require modification, owing to lack of equality in the errors of the different experiments, and owing to non-homogeneity of the components of the interaction of treatments with places and times.

Does the chimpanzee have a theory of mind?

David Premack^{a1} and Guy Woodruff^{a2}

^{a1} Department of Psychology, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, Penna. 19104

^{a2} University of Pennsylvania Primate Facility, Honey Brook, Penna. 19344

Abstract

An individual has a theory of mind if he imputes mental states to himself and others. A system of inferences of this kind is properly viewed as a theory because such states are not directly observable, and the system can be used to make predictions about the behavior of others. As to the mental states the chimpanzee may infer, consider those

1) Selecting a Journal

- Impact Factor
- Select a journal in the preliminary stages
 - Predetermines style and intended audience
- Intended readership, aims and scope
- Read current articles - All journals have free online issues

- Journal Citation Reports Service
- Consider editorial decision time and post acceptance turnaround
- Does the journal offer 'first view' online access?

3) Types of Paper

Consider the type of paper you are writing, as this will have implications on both likelihood of acceptance and the citation rate.

- Original Article

- Review Article

- Case Report

(Now less acceptable for publication unless they are unique and report on an unexpected association or outcome.)

4) Structure and Style

- ABC of Effective Writing
 - A – Accuracy
 - B – Brevity
 - C – Clarity
- Keep sentences short and simple (20 words)
- Be positive rather than negative
- Avoid needless words
- No Abbreviations
- Check references carefully
- Correctly label Figures

5) Tables, Illustrations and Photographs

- Should usually be submitted separately from text, and legends typed on a separate sheet.
- Tables should be simple and not duplicate information in the text.
- Data in graphs should be submitted in tabular form.
- Figures to be submitted as high resolution TIFF/EPS/JPEG files (>300dpi) as reproduction can reduce quality.
- Ensure you have secured necessary permissions for any third party material you have used, prior to submission.
- Remember colour is not a substitute for careful thought about data display!

6) Rejections and Revisions

The usual reasons for rejection are:

- Insufficient originality
- Serious Scientific Flaws
- Absence of a message that is important to the target audience
- Questionnaire surveys with low response rates
- Articles that are simply descriptive with little attempt at evaluation

If you are sending a revised manuscript back to the journal, you should include a detailed point-by-point explanation of how you have addressed each reviewers' and editors' comments.

Thank you for the constructive criticism of my paper. Here are my comments on the referee's suggestions.

I have rewritten this passage to make my point of view more clear.

7) How to Submit

- Online Submission
- Email
- Always refer to Instructions for contributors for journal specific information.
(i.e. format for submission of any supplementary material.)
- Include a cover letter/email with any required information and if necessary a concise version of the logic of the paper.
- Remember submission of a paper is taken to denote that all authors have seen the final version and approved it.

编辑与审稿人

- 编辑和审稿人是论文的第一个读者，他们有权利决定论文是否接受发表，必须以平和的态度正确对待审稿人和编辑的意见及建议。
- 国际刊物的审稿人都是牺牲自己的时间义务服务，作者应该尊重他们的付出。
- 审稿人延迟和压制 非常少见。
- 为保护自己的观点，一种做法是在投稿前于学术会议上发表自己的结果。（很多重要的学术刊物不接受这样的稿件，作者应根据自己所在的学科情况综合考虑。）
- 个别高影响因子的刊物，需要作者提交之前在别的刊物上发表的论文，以便审稿人评阅决定是否录用。
- 按照编辑要求的改写或者缩写。
- 每个作者一生都会收到拒稿信，不用灰心，这是正常现象。
